

Suspended Jail Terms For Students

Thirty-day suspended jail sentences were meted out Monday afternoon to eight Stanford University freshmen accused of removing road signs.

The sentences were imposed by Judge Aylett R. Cotton, himself a Stanford graduate.

In effect, the sentences put the octet on indefinite probation, because if they again are arrested they will have to serve the suspended terms.

The group was picked up last week by the Woodside special patrol who caught the students after they had removed two lead markers at either end of the Sand Hill Rd. bridge.

Judge Cotton told the youths that removal of such signs was dangerous to truck traffic traveling over the bridge. The judge said that he, too, was a Stanford man and while he understood what the boys had done was intended as a prank, they are now grown men and must realize that the signs were put up for a purpose.

The students, ranging in ages from 17 to 20, were scheduled to go before a Stanford University student council as a result of their actions.

Woman Arrested In 'Bandit' Catch

Charlotte M. Whisen, 22, of 1506 Burlingame Ave., Burlingame, was arrested yesterday afternoon for possession and control of a slot machine at Sugar Joe's, a cafe on Bayshore Hwy. in East Palo Alto.

She was released on $100 bail and is to appear before Justice of the Peace Edward I. McAuliffe at 10 a.m. tomorrow.

The slot machine was confiscated Tuesday noon by Dep. Sheriff William Schade, who went to the back room after he heard the machine pay off to a customer.

Mrs. Cyrus, a ranchwoman from Santa Paula, Calif., is exhibiting a black mare, "Idolita," in the show parade class and a Palomino mare in the American saddle bred class.

She won a speed flight from Denver, around Pike's Peak and return to Denver in an A-26 plane she called "The Hurricane."

SC Forum Group Hears Talk On Redistricting of Schools

"State school legislation and its local effects," was the topic discussed this week by the San Carlos Forum Committee at the Central School, Emmett Mahoney, school principal and coordinator of the group, was the speaker, and he led the open discussion.

A public forum on the same subject will be held on Nov. 18 at the Central School, with George Davis, chairman of the San Mateo County Redistricting Survey Committee, as principal speaker.

"The whole problem of redistricting," according to Mrs. R. L. Harlan, publicity chairman for the forum, "is to even the flow of tax money into the districts where there are so many children and it is needed for schools."

Three years ago, she explained, Gov. Earl Warren saw the prospect of the growth of population in this area and called in an authority from the East to survey the whole situation of the state of California and to make recommendations.

These recommendations were to be used as the basis for state school legislation. Outgrowth of the recommendations was this redistricting survey which is being done by local business people and interested service groups in various communities.

The forum committee discussed future topics for public discussion and announced the following: "Community Safety," for Dec. 2; "What about Communism? When is it most dangerous?" for Dec. 16. The Jan. 20 forum will be on "Community Planning."

Jan. 6 will be concerned with "Industrial Relations." "What have we learned from our industrial experiences?" will constitute the question, with emphasis to be on general constructive thinking on the whole picture of unionism, capital and labor.

Port Commissioners Approve Mixing Plant

Port of Redwood City commissioners last night voiced approval of Contractor Peter Sorensen's plan to erect a road material plant on port land, Commission Chmn. K. B. (Pete) Towne announced today.

Towne said that legal technicalities, however, were still to be worked out.

Sorensen has proposed that a mixing plant be constructed south of Five Points in an unincorporated area be moved to the port where heavy industry is permitted. He was prevented from operating the plant at the site it was constructed on by the San Mateo County Planning Commission on the grounds that the area was primarily for residents.

Seeks First Aid at Hospital ... Confesses Looting Temple

A San Francisco army veteran who admitted burglarizing the I Am Temple in San Francisco last night was arrested by California Highway Patrol officers at Mills Memorial Hospital where he had gone to receive treatment for severe cuts on his hands.

The man first claimed that he was injured in an automobile accident, but after officers proved his story false he confessed to the burglary.

Francis W. Young, 33, a longshoreman who lives at the Gartland Hotel, San Francisco, was booked at the county jail this morning en route to San Francisco police.

CHP Officers Frank Chevalier and Harold Varni said they were called to Mills Hospital about 2:30 this morning to investigate an accident report. Young told them that he was riding with a friend whose car plunged over a bank and overturned on Skyline Blvd. near Brisbane. The officers left the hospital to check his story but failed to confirm it.

Varni and Chevalier returned to the hospital and upon further questioning Young admitted the burglary of the I Am Temple at 1337 Sutter St. at 10:30 last night.

Young made his confession when the officers confronted him with a blood soaked suit and $633 which they found in a paper sack under the operating table.

Young signed the confession to the effect that he climbed up a fire escape to the second floor of the temple and broke in a window. While climbing through the window he slashed the back of his hands on the jagged glass, cutting several large veins and a tendon. Doctors said he would lose the use of the middle finger of his right hand.

After taking the money from the files in the temple's office, Young returned to his hotel room and changed into a new suit. He put the bloodstained bag, took a taxi to Loma Park and transferred there to another cab which took him to the hospital. He said he figured he would have a better chance of getting away with his accident story by leaving the city in which the crime was committed.

The officers said that Young also admitted serving a year in the San Francisco county jail for another burglary.

Boy Scout News

At meetings held last week in Burlingame and Redwood City the Scoutmasters of San Mateo Area Council reported on the progress of each unit toward its 1947 membership objective.

Several leaders reported "objective reached" and all plan to qualify prior to the first week of December when recognition will be given at district courts of honor.

Recognition to units reaching membership objectives is made each year by the Council Pres. Philip N. Lillenthal, Jr., who presents a ribbon for the unit flag.

The Courts of Honor are scheduled this year for Dec. 3 at Burlingame High School Auditorium for Scouts of the Central District, for Dec. 4 at Northridge School, San Bruno for the Northern District and Dec. 5 at McKinley School, Redwood City, for Scouts of the Southern District.

In addition to the Award of Membership Ribbons all new Cub Scouts enrolled during October and November will be given personal recognition, and Star, Life and Eagle ranks will be conferred.

After the regular opening ceremony, the evening was spent in knot tying instruction and patrol projects. Two troop commissioners and four visitors were present, in addition to 14 registered Scouts, making a total of 28.

Twenty-six registered Scouts were present when Troop 150 met at the San Carlos Recreation Center, Oct. 27. Scoutmaster W. M. Jackson welcomed one new candidate and three visitors. The evening was devoted to advancement work in preparation for the Court of Honor.

Scribe Jerol Garrison of Troop 120 reports that instead of having a regular meeting when the group met last Thursday in the Congregational Church, Redwood City, a Halloween party was held by the 20 registered Scouts who attended.

One troop commissioner was present and two new candidates were welcomed by Scoutmaster H. S. Stout.

Scribe Don Zarker of Troop 104, which held its meeting in the First Baptist Church, Redwood City, reports that the first aid bandaging was studied under the leadership of Acting Scoutmaster Bill Fane.

Nineteen registered Scouts who were present spent the evening in advancement work. Scoutmaster J. Cochran welcomed three new candidates and one troop commissioner and one visitor were present.

Troop 122 of Redwood City, held a Halloween party at Mt. Carmel Hall, last Tuesday night. The boys put on skits and according to Scribe Bill Delucchi, 31 were present, including three troop committeemen, one district committeeman and six visitors. Scoutmaster Fred E. Davis welcomed two new candidates.

Neighborhood Commissioner M. A. Gooding reports that Pack 22 has a fine active committee and enthusiastic parent cooperation. He visited the pack on the occasion of its Halloween party, when about 80 people, Cubs and their parents, attended.

Leonards Are Victims Of Holdup

San Mateo County Agricultural Comar, Max J. Leonard and Mrs. Leonard were held in Redwood City today after having been robbed and their automobile stolen at gunpoint during a vacation trip to Northern California.

The Leonards had been vacationing at Smith River near Crescent City and on their return trip home late Tuesday afternoon they stopped at Walt's Steak House in Eureka—just in time to be lined up against the wall along with 10 customers already in the cafe and robbed.

After taking about $300 from the customers and the cafe's till, the short, masked robber stuck a long-barreled .38-caliber revolver to Leonard's stomach and demanded the keys to his 1941 sedan.

Leonard obligingly gave the robber the keys to the car, but the robber couldn't start the car. Once more he went to Leonard with gun in hand and marched Leonard to the car, which he started.

The car was found 2½ hours later 10 blocks from the robbery scene.

Leonard said this was the first time that he was glad he was almost broke at the end of a vacation trip. The robber took $11 from him.

The Leonards returned to their home at 1633 Edgewood Rd. late yesterday.

Apportionment in San Mateo County will be as follows: unincorporated area, $23,315.77; cities: Redwood City, $6,192.50; total all county, $29,508.27.

The sum represents one-half of the total collected from the license fees, the state retaining the other half which is used for defraying all costs of licensing, administration and enforcement of the alcoholic beverage control act.

Seawell said this is the last allocation to be made on this basis. In Apr., 1948, the major portion of the money will be allocated to local communities and thereafter, all revenue will go to the communities from the license fees.

COME...BRING THE FAMILY

Gans Has New Job, Raps Civil Service

Dr. Charles C. Gans, San Mateo County health director, today charged that the specifications which the civil service commission has set for his successor are too low.

The doctor made his criticism even as he announced that he had accepted the position in another Central California county at the same salary he is getting here, $614 a month. He is to start work in his new post on Dec. 1.

He refused to name the other county, declaring that he promised the supervisors not to reveal the name until announced by the board of supervisors.

Although Dr. Gans refused to name the county, Dr. John O. Rafferty, acting health officer of Santa Cruz County, confirmed that Dr. Gans would succeed him there. Dr. Rafferty said he is leaving to do hospital work.

Dr. Gans will be going to the county from which County Executive Frederick Peterson tried to recruit Dr. John D. Fuller in 1939. Peterson named Dr. Fuller to succeed Dr. Gans but Dr. Fuller later withdrew his application and Dr. Gans stayed on in the job.

His criticism of the civil service specifications set last week was made after a telephone conversation he had with Dr. J. C. Geiger, San Francisco health director who has been ruled out as Dr. Gans' successor because he is over 54, the maximum age set by the commission.

"I think it is a mistake to put low qualifications on a highly-paid job," Dr. Gans said. The salary range is to be in the $12,000 to $15,000 class.

He said that the commission should require a master's degree or a doctorate in public health, in addition to five years of experience and academic training in a school of public health.

"As this thing stands, they are liable to get men not qualified for the job."

He admitted, however, that he himself holds neither a master's nor a doctor's degree in public health.

Personnel Director Russell J. Cooney defended the commission's specifications and in effect told Dr. Gans that they were not his business.

"We set those specifications on the advice of authorities far more noted than Gans," Cooney said, "and with far better records of accomplishment in the field of public health administration."

"It's the responsibility of the civil service commission, not Dr. Gans, to see that his successor is competent, and we intend to carry out our responsibility to the county."

Dr. Gans must retire from his job at the end of December, but has said that he would leave his desk on Nov. 20, because he has due him 24 days of vacation and 50 days of overtime.

His claim for overtime must be approved by County Executive Frederick Peterson, who today said that he has not yet heard from Gans on the subject.

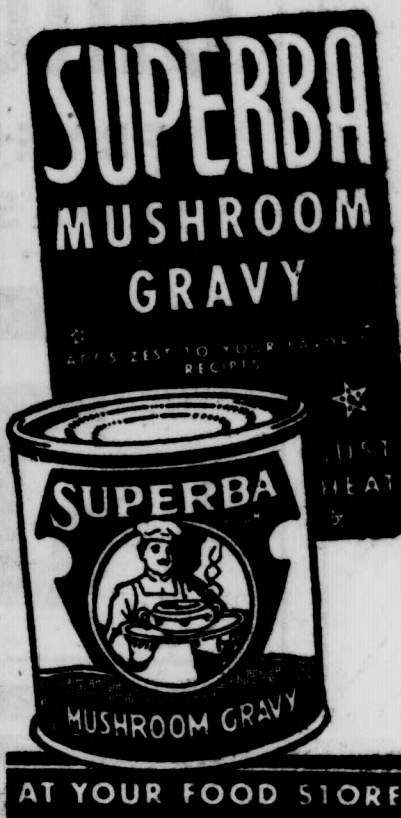

"He'll have to prove that he has the overtime coming," Peterson said. "We're not a charitable institution."

He then contradicted himself, declaring that "I'm not going to do anything to hurt the fellow."

"You know I'm always for the underdog," he remarked.

Dr. Gans said that he will leave on Nov. 20, even if he has to take a vacation without pay.

When he leaves, he will appoint Dr. James O. Greenwell, superintendent of Canyon Sanatorium, to substitute for him as health director until a new director is named.
